HOLY CITY OF AKSUM FALLS: ITALY TO FIGHT A BLOCKADE

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

IF YOU were an ox-cart farmer and suddenly came into money, what would you buy first? You would buy an automobile. And what next? You would put in a telephone line. And then what? Well, you wouldn't be quite certain, but the chances are you would purchase a radio. And if you had still more money and couldn't think of anything else to buy you would put in electric lights and running water. These are the facts regarding all American farm homes, as brought to me by a bulletin of the Rural Electrification Administration (REA), Washington, D. C.

Only 15 per cent of American farm homes have electricity—85 per cent do not.

Only 15 per cent have water piped into the house—85 per cent do not.

Only 20 per cent have radios—80 per cent do not.

Only 35 per cent have telephones—65 per cent do not.

But 60 per cent have cars—while only 40 per cent do without.

It is natural, of course, that household conveniences should be placed first and foremost by city-dwellers, while people on the farm put emphasis on transportation and communication.

And yet there is no good reason why, in this day of cheaply-generated electricity and federal aid in the building of transmission lines, 85 per cent of America's farm homes should remain without electric light and power.

"Too many farms are behind the times," says the title-line on the REA bulletin I have just taken my figures from.

And Hempstead county farms are further behind the times than the average for Arkansas.

Some farm homes already have connections with the Hope municipal plant on a couple of short rural lines—but facilities are at hand today for a much wider use of electricity, right here in our own farm community.

The trend gives increasing weight to the predictions of many politicians that, in the end, the dollars-and-cents aspects of the situation in Washington will influence far more votes in 1936 than all of the talk about economic theory and the constitution.

When the ordinary voter grapples with the constitutional issue, or tries to dissect and examine "the new economy" or "the more abundant life," he usually fetches up at least in a fog of argument and bewildering contradiction.

With money matters it is different. Many obscurities linger in the government's financial statements, but by and large anyone who can add and subtract is able to see whether the income is balancing or failing to balance the outgo, and draw his own conclusions.

Possibly it was in recognition of this fact, that, within a single week, Mr. Roosevelt issued his prediction that no heavier taxes would be necessary to liquidate the depression debts, and Mr. Hoover selected this same theme as the subject of a speech regarded everywhere as the most important he has delivered since he left the White House.

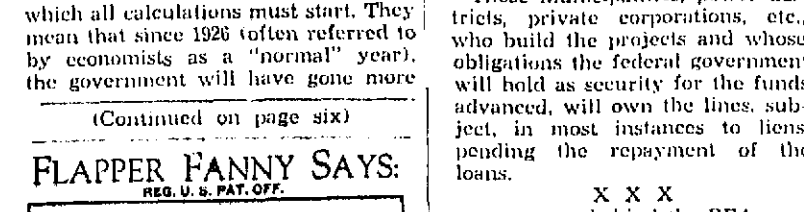

The latest official figures forecast the following situation as of June 30, next:

Receipts for the preceding year, $1,476,000,000. Expenditures for the same period, $1,752,000,000. Yearly deficit, $3,282,000,000. Total national debt $30,723,000,000.

These are the basic figures from which all calculations must start. They mean that since 1926 (often referred to by economists as a "normal" year), the government will have gone more

AUTHORITY QUOTED

High New Jersey Official Behind New Offer Newspaper Declares

NEW YORK—(AP)—The New York Evening Journal says in a copyrighted story from Trenton, N. J., Thursday that Bruno Richard Hauptmann might yet save himself from the electric chair by confessing to the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby. The newspaper says "one of New Jersey's most powerful officials" has given this assurance.

Governor Would Cut Pardon Power

Advocates Law Abolishing Parole of Life-Termers After 7 Years

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Governor Futrell said Thursday he favored decreasing the State Welfare Department personnel unless it proved that the services of all its workers are needed. The governor advocated the passage of a law eliminating the practice of freeing life-termers after they have served seven years or less.

Futrell said he favored a law to provide that life-termers can not be paroled. It would practically eliminate the governor's pardoning power.

The governor's comments on the welfare department were made on the eve of a session of the commission's executive committee.

Best Lecture by Morgan Thursday

Presbyterian Six-Day Bible Course Will Close Here Friday

One of the outstanding lectures by Dr. Frank Crossley Morgan, who is conducting a Bible conference at First Presbyterian church, is scheduled for Thursday night.

His topic will be: "A Revelation of the Pre-Requisites of Victory."

Dr. Morgan will bring the conference to a close Friday night, ending a six-day session.

Buyers Crowd the State Land Office

Offer of $1 Per Acre for Tax-Forfeited Lands Gets Results

LITTLE ROCK—More than 500 persons applied to the state land office Wednesday to purchase or donate tax-forfeited land that was not redeemed under Act 18 of 1935, the emergency redemption law, which expired Tuesday.

The land office was crowded Tuesday by persons who sought to redeem their property under payment of the equivalent of two years' taxes and costs which attached in connection with the original delinquency.

With expiration of the emergency redemption law, all state-owned land became subject to purchase for $1 per acre or to donation upon payment of a nominal donation fee and establishment of residence on the property.

The donation could not be completed until the applicant lives on the property two years.

Many of those who sought to buy land under the $1-an-acre law were owners of the property which had been delinquent so long that taxes amounted to more than $1 an acre.

Others sought to purchase property which they had "spotted" before the emergency period expired.

Land Commissioner George W. Neal said two weeks or longer would be required to catch up with clerical work in connection with last minute redemptions and that applications to purchase or donate could not be handled until a check of the redemption records showed whether the particular property is subject to sale or donation.

Given Life Term for Killing Wife

W. M. Martin Guilty of Murder—Wife's Body Found in Dredge Ditch

HARRISBURG, Ark.—(AP)—W. M. Martin, 33, of Turman, was convicted early Thursday and sentenced to life in prison in the death of his wife last August.

The Polk county jury reached its verdict after an hour's deliberation.

Mrs. Martin's body was found in a dredge ditch a week after she disappeared. Physicians said her neck was broken.

Sheriff J. D. Dubard reported alleged quarrels between Martin and his wife, and said friends declared Mrs. Martin had been beaten and frightened.

Thursday, Deadline on City Street Tax

Only 62 Paid $2.50 Levy Up to Noon—Deadline Is 5 o'Clock

Sixty-two persons had paid street tax at noon Thursday as the deadline neared for the $2.50 assessment.

City Treasurer Charles Reynerson announced that his office would remain open until 5 p. m. Thursday for the collection of the tax.

Whether a penalty would be attached after Thursday was not announced by officials.

Chief of Police John W. Ridgill has warned that the tax would be collected this year and is preparing to take action against citizens who fail to pay.

According to Chief Ridgill, those eligible to pay tax are citizens living inside the city limits, and ranging in age from 18 to 45.

Vice-President to Pay Japan a Visit

Garner Will Be Received by Empire En Route to Philippine Island

Warning From U. S. Secretary

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Secretary Hull of the Department of State issued a warning Thursday that Americans who deal with Italy or Ethiopia in any way whatsoever do so at their own risk.

Copyright Associated Press GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP)—The League of Nations assembly gave overwhelming approval Thursday to the council's condemnation of Italy for its war on Ethiopia—meaning worldwide punishment of the Fascist nation through sanctions.

Most of the League powers pledged themselves either openly or by silent acquiescence to the policy of sanctions.

Only Italy, Austria and Hungary, of the 54 nations represented, announced non-acceptance of the council's report against Italy.

League officials said this meant at least 50 nations endorsed the verdict of war guilt.

Anthony Eden, of England, said the League now faced the task of action.

Fighting Resumed

PARIS, France—(AP)—Dispatches to the Paris Soir from the Eritrean front said Wednesday that fighting is general throughout the northern Ethiopian sector with 300,000 troops engaged in a quadrangle formed by Odi Urge and Adi Kete, in Eritrea and Adigrat and Aksum, in Ethiopia.

The fiercest fighting, said the dispatches, was on the outskirts of Aksum which was reported encircled by Italian columns but not yet captured because of the heavy fire of Ethiopian sharpshooters hidden in hills commanding the city.

The dispatches also said an Ethiopian plan to cut the Eritrean railroad at Massaia collapsed when attacks at Adi Kete and Adi Kete were repulsed.

What was described as a third attack on Adigrat, which is in Italian hands, was said to have failed.

Tuesday night, the Soir's report said, Ethiopians attempted to recapture Aduwa and were thrown back after three attacks, the battle lasting until dawn with heavy Ethiopian losses.

Large numbers of Italian wounded, the dispatches said, were being moved to the rear.

Emperor Selassie requested the Italian minister to leave at once, with the recall of the Ethiopian charge d'affaires from Rome, rupturing diplomatic relations between Ethiopia and Italy.

American missionaries in Ethiopia remained at their posts despite Washington advices that they leave.

GENEVA, Switzerland—(AP)—An Italian spokesman told the Associated Press Thursday that any naval blockade against Italy means war.

Discussing the possibility that an ineffective economic boycott might lead to a blockade to make sanctions really effective, the spokesman said the Italians do not fear economic sanctions because Italy counts on getting necessities from Germany through Austria.

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Child's Face Depends on Straight Teeth.

The appearance of your child depends greatly on the attention you pay to his teeth.

It is for the purpose of preventing deformities in the teeth, and resultant misshaping of the face, that a new specialty in dentistry, called orthodontia, has grown up. Such specialists seek to restore the teeth and jaws to a normal appearance and prevent further deformities.

The first thing an orthodontist wants to know, when he sees a child with a queer-shaped mouth, is whether the youngster has any bad habits, like thumb-sucking, and whether it has trouble breathing because of an obstruction in the nose. Then he wants to know whether removal of these causes would improve the looks of the teeth.

If this occurs before the permanent teeth come out, the dentist wants to know whether disappearance of the baby teeth and coming of the permanent teeth will take care of the trouble. If not, he takes measures to bring about a normal appearance.

Sometimes some of the teeth must be extracted to make room for the rest. In other cases, the teeth must be wedged apart.

Generally, if the baby teeth are crowded and the jaws do not shut well, you won't find any improvement when the permanent teeth come through. In fact, the condition might get worse.

You should see, therefore, that a competent dentist begins work on the teeth, when the child is only from 4 to 6 years old, to get what help may be given at these ages.

It is not likely that the elimination of thumb-sucking and mouth breathing will cure the irregularity of the teeth, but certainly these conditions should be attended to because they make any kind of cure difficult, even with the best dental care.

Between the ages of 6 and 9, the permanent incisors take the place of the smaller milk teeth. Proper spacing is necessary so that these teeth will come in straight and true.

The canine teeth come in between 11 and 12 years and fill the gap between the incisor teeth and the first premolars. If there is crowding, these teeth will be forced outward and resemble minnow tails. In other cases they may press on the incisor teeth and tilt these teeth outward.

X-ray pictures of such development will show whether the teeth and gums are healthy, and whether the teeth are coming through normally.

The job of straightening the teeth is a long, tedious affair, involving considerable interference with the child's life and being exceedingly costly. If the teeth get proper care early enough, however, the mouth may be in fairly good shape by the age of 12, and the expense thereafter will be much less.

A BOOK A DAY

Looks at Virginia With Cynical Eyes.

A talented son of the Old Dominion named Julian R. Meade has written a book entitled, "I Live in Virginia," if he is a wise young man he will not go back to his native state until the smoke has cleared away.

This book treats the sainted institutions of the Old Dominion with considerable lack of reverence. It does for Virginia what "Stars Fell on Alabama" did for Alabama, with a notable difference; it looks at the state and its people with disillusioned cynicism instead of breathless and slightly pop-eyed admiration.

Mr. Meade, for instance, tells of a textile strike in Danville. He does not seem to have been especially impressed by the nobility of the union leaders, but the tactics of the mill owners, and the town's "better element" generally, impressed him even less; and he has named names with a bright abandon.

So, too, with the Virginia Military Institute, a school about which rich traditions cluster thickly. Mr. Meade says bluntly that it isn't much of a school, that its discipline is inhuman and that it permits a degree of hazing which is utterly out of reason.

And so he goes, tilting vigorously with some of the state's most respected people and institutions. He tells of Lady Astor's visit to the old home town and leaves her a comic figure; he writes of Virginia beach and has a lively go at fair southern womanhood. All in all, though his book is interesting, I am afraid a lot of Virginians are going to dislike it.

Published by Longmans, Green and Co., it tells for $2.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Noise Is Spiritual Barrier

"What is Caroline doing?" asked the neighbor.

"Studying," said her mother. The neighbor looked blank. The radio upstairs was going full tilt and every sonorous word could be distinctly heard in the living room. At intervals an ominous gong would sound, to add creeps to the mystery story.

Caroline's mother smiled. "She can't study unless she has some sort of a racket going on," she explained. "The minute she goes to her room she turns on the radio. Children are funny nowadays. You and I couldn't do it that way, could we?"

"I should say not. Why I can hardly talk to you. Doesn't it make you get worse?"

"I'm used to it. I used to be fidgety, but I don't notice it any more."

"Do you mean she really studies when someone is telling an exciting story?"

Learn to Work Amid Din.

"She seems to get her lessons. Oh, I suppose she stops to listen now and then. But they say it's good for young people to learn to concentrate with all sorts of noise going on about them."

In some schools where they teach shorthand and typing they see that there is plenty of noise so that when a girl gets a job later she will be able to work without distraction.

"Yes, I can see why that is," acknowledged the neighbor. "But do you actually think children can think deeply and be interested in what they are doing with a jazz band dining in their ears?"

"They used to tell us that the children studied aloud in school. And I have heard they do it in some of the Russian schools today. There must be some idea behind it, noise I mean—there's always some reason you know."

"My brother is a minister," said the neighbor thoughtfully. "When he writes his sermons he has to have the house as quiet as the back woods. He says he cannot feel very spiritual with the electric sweeper going. I do think there are times when we should think without a racket. It's good for us and writing poetry in a boiler works or planning next year's garden with a broken chain clacking against the fender of the car."

Avoid Emotions

Her hostess nodded. "That's right. It is the spiritual side that suffers, isn't it? No time to be emotional. Maybe that is the idea. Young people today don't want to be emotional. They want to avoid sentiment, to avoid soul-searching and feelings. The moment is enough. I don't know whether they'll be happier or sorer for it."

"Well, good-night. I must go."

"Oh, please don't. I'll tell Caroline to turn off that radio."

It ceased in an instant and the girl came downstairs. "Through?" asked her mother.

"No," said Caroline. "I'll finish after while. As the visitor left a half hour later she ran upstairs. 'I'll finish my composition on Goethe,' she called. As the door closed the radio snored out. 'Oh, there was a cow, and her name was Mike.' The lady escaped."

On Our Way

At one time during a season of heavy fog, a London daily paper offered a prize for the best fog story. The story given here won the prize:

A merchant received a telephone message one morning from one of his clerks. "Hello, Mr. Smith," said the clerk over the wire, "I can't come down to the shop this morning on account of the fog. I have not yet arrived home yesterday."—Toronto Globe.

They Can Always Tell

The GOLDEN FEATHER

by Robert Bruce
© 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JEAN DUNN, pretty, 21, is secretary to DONALD MONTAGUE, lawyer. BOBBY WALLACE, automobile salesman, has frequently asked her to marry him. But Jean delays her answer.

At the Golden Feather night club she meets SANDY HARKINS, who says he is in Dover on business.

LARRY GLENN, federal agent, warns Jean and Bobby against spending much time in places like The Golden Feather. Larry is trying to trail WINGY LEWIS, bank robber. He discusses the case with his friend, MIKE HANSEN, of the local police force.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER VIII

MR. LEWIS, like his wife, seemed to be of a friendly disposition.

"All I've heard," he said, "since that other night, has been a lot of stuff about some beautiful mama with golden hair."

He sat slumped down in his chair and looked at Jean with sly impudence.

"Is that right, Sandy?" she asked.

"It's been worse than that," said Sandy lugubriously. "It's getting me down. I'm wasting away to a shadow."

"Too bad about you," she said lightly. "You look healthy enough."

The music stopped, and Bobby and Eve came back to the table. Bobby was duly introduced to Mr. Lewis, and as they sat down Jean discovered that her conscience was trying to make itself heard again.

"You were jealous when you saw Sandy with Eve, but you weren't jealous a bit when Bobby danced with her," said Conscience.

"I won't listen to you any longer," said Jean firmly.

A ripple of laughter greeted her as she emerged from this bit of self-communion. Bobby had just told some funny incident or other that had occurred that afternoon while he tried to sell an automobile to a pompous dowager.

Mr. Lewis looked at him with interest.

"So you sell autos, do you?" he asked.

"Well, I try to."

"Mmm. Who you with?"

"State Auto Sales, Incorporated."

"Uh, That's Mark Hopkins' agency, isn't it?"

"Yeah."

LEWIS stared at the drink which the waiter put in front of him, and held the glass cupped in his hand for a long time, studying it intently.

"Listen," he said to Bobby at last. "You and I might be able to do some business, one of these days."

Bobby leaned forward eagerly.

"Yeah," went on Lewis. "I'm going to be needing a new car. Might as well let you sell it to me, I guess."

He yawned lazily.

"That'd be swell," said Bobby. Lewis continued to look at his glass.

"Trouble is," he said, "I got a little dead to put over, first."

"You mean," Bobby said slowly, "it would amount to my buying these bonds for $10,000, selling them for $12,000 and pocketing the difference?"

up a little midnight lunch, and while you do Mr. Wallace and I can talk business. How about it?"

It was agreed, and the subject was dropped. There was more dancing, much gay conversation and joking, and at last Eve yawned elaborately and announced that it was getting late.

It was 10 o'clock. They left the night club and walked half a block to where a large, expensive sedan was parked by the curb. Lewis unlocked it and slipped in behind the wheel; and Jean wondered, vaguely, why he should be wanting a new car when he already owned such a fine one.

Fifteen minutes later they drew up before an ornate apartment hotel on the western side of town. He left the car at the curb, ushered them into the lobby and conducted them up to a sixth-floor suite.

They entered a roomy, well-furnished living room. Eve sank into an overstuffed chair and announced, "I'm too full to want any midnight lunch, and I bet all the rest of you are, too. Go ahead and talk business, if you want to."

Bobby found himself seated on a couch beside Lewis. Lewis lit a cigar and said, "Well, it's like this. Your boss, Hopkins, has got a special job out there I want. It's a sedan, and he wants $10,000 for it."

Bobby gaped at him.

"I didn't know we had any jobs out there that cost that much," he said.

"This is a special job, I said," said Lewis. "Custom-built, and all. Anyhow, that's the car I want. Now listen."

He crossed the room suddenly, went to a desk, unlocked a Hands Ugly? Crime May Be Cause.

Women who do housework and those who handle carbon paper in offices have to take special care of their hands and fingernails. Dust and grime are among the worst enemies of cuticle.

When you have finished the breakfast dishes (use a bland soap powder), cover your hands and wrists with a thick hand cream or plain olive oil and put on rubber gloves. Modern rubber gloves are so thin that they are in no way cumbersome. If you like, get one of the hand beautifier sets which have been put on the market recently.

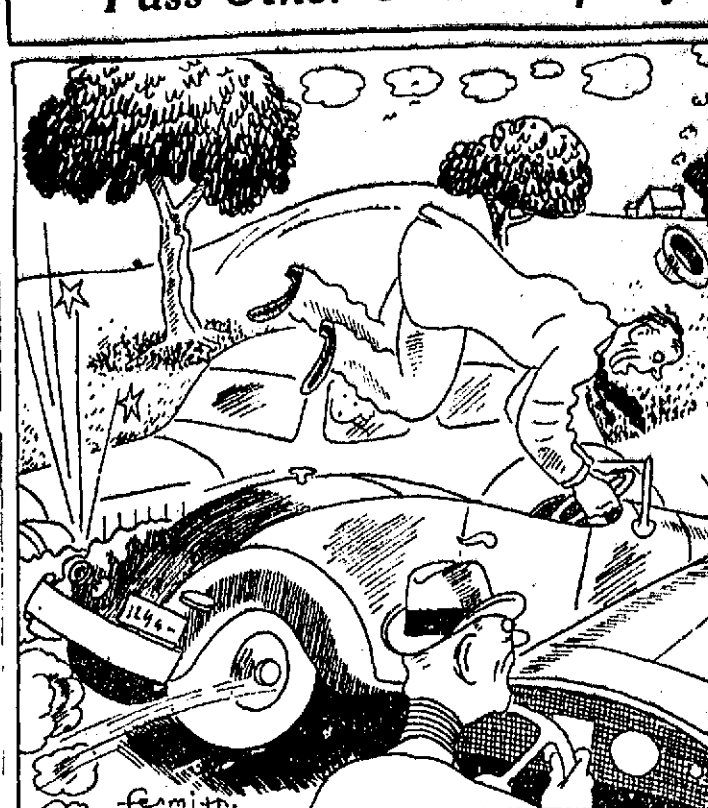

One of these packages includes a jar of heavy, scented cream, a hand soap that you can use on special occasions and thin but sturdy rubber gloves in your favorite color. Incidentally, one of these would make a nice little gift for a bride who is worried to death about ruining her hands with her new duties.

The office worker who can't wear rubber gloves during the day ought to cover her hands with cream and should wear old cotton ones at least two nights a week. The cream does its work while she sleeps. Also, she must remember to wash her hands frequently—certainly always after changing a typewriter ribbon, using carbon paper or reading proof.

Keep a piece of fresh lemon or a bottle of lemon juice on the bathroom shelf and use it to remove stains on fingernails. See that your manicurist uses an oily polish remover and that the peroxide she puts on under tips of nails is removed quickly before it has a chance to spill over on cuticle.

Pass Other Cars Properly

Year by year the deadly traffic toll reaches new peaks. In the battle to reduce this loss of life are state Motor Vehicle Administrators. Twelve of them, officers and members of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, have contributed a series of articles describing the major causes of automobile accidents. Seven in the series: "Pass Other Cars Properly" follows.

By ORVILLE E. ATWOOD
Secretary of State, Michigan.
Vice-President, American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

IMPROPER passing is one of the surest signs of a poor driver. The poor driver is a dangerous driver. Accidents caused by cars on the wrong side of the road last year killed 3,500 persons and injured 102,000, according to figures of a member company of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. Passing on the wrong side and passing a standing street car killed 250 and injured 6,000 more. These harrowing numbers make it clear that the driver who does not pass properly is a peril to himself and everybody else on the road.

According to authorities, improper passing is the result either of ignorance or unjustified haste. It is always inexcusable. Since it implies accelerated speed, the likelihood of a severe collision is greater. The driver who passes improperly usually does so constantly until halted by a collision. Avoid being this kind of menace by always making sure you have 500 feet of clear road of your before passing another vehicle. Do not cut out and in hurriedly. Drive out of your lane gradually. Sound your horn, pass smoothly back. Pass on the left, never on the right, except where street cars require it. Pass other cars only when they are slowing or when their descending gears are protected by a safe pass at a reasonable speed. A line rather than weave through traffic.

The good driver observes above rules. When he passes, it is fluid motion, pretty much as he does not strain his own muscles. Those of the driver he is passing are protected by a safe pass at a reasonable speed. A line rather than weave through traffic.

If your ears are nice, a bit of color on each lobe is permissible, but don't use more than a mere speck. Regardless of the color of your eyes, hair or gown, it should be some shade of brown. After all, the object of any cosmetic is to enhance the beauty you already have and to improve your natural coloring. The natural tones of all eyelids are brown. To cover these with greens, some exotic shade defeats the purpose of the eyeshadow. Occasional real brunettes can get away with a new box of eyelid cosmetics. If your ears are nice, a bit of color on each lobe is permissible, but don't use more than a mere speck. Regardless of the color of your eyes, hair or gown, it should be some shade of brown. After all, the object of any cosmetic is to enhance the beauty you already have and to improve your natural coloring. The natural tones of all eyelids are brown. To cover these with greens, some exotic shade defeats the purpose of the eyeshadow. Occasional real brunettes can get away with a new box of eyelid cosmetics. Some of the iridescent varieties glitter and give lids a nice, glossy look. Powder After Applying Eyeshadow.

When the eyeshadow is blended, press on more powder than you need and let it set for a few minutes. Whisk off with a soft complexion brush or a piece of clean, dry cotton. Mascara is another item which follows the rule for brown. If your lashes are very light, get a light brown one. If medium, a slightly darker shade. But, if your lashes actually are coal black, do not put on black mascara. And, if tempted by blue, green, orchid, purple. Keep in mind that you are trying to improve, not distort, nature.

Put perfume behind your ears, on wrists and at the base of your throat. Never drop or spray it on clothing. If you use an atomizer, spray it above the neckline of your gown. ## A New Chance for Tenant Farmers in Resettlement

Industrious Men on Poor-est Land May Be Given Test Farm Tracts

NOT PURELY RELIEF Resettlement to Draw From Ranks of Tenant Farmers Also

1. What will the Rural Resettlement Division do?
Through its Rural Resettlement Division, the Resettlement Administration advances funds to farm families for the purchase or lease of land, livestock, equipment and subsistence goods. Such loans are ordinarily secured by mortgages on real property, personality, and or crops, and are repayable within a reasonable period. The program has two main phases:
A. Rehabilitation, the temporary phase.
B. Resettlement, the permanent phase.

2. What is the Difference between Rehabilitation and Resettlement?
A. Rehabilitation was inherited from FERA, which had taken 290,000 families under care during the year ending July 1, 1935. These families had been taken from direct relief, and helped to become, in part, at least, self-supporting. A farm and home program had been laid out for each such family. Agricultural extension workers have now assumed joint responsibility with the Rural Resettlement Division for planning and supervising this program, which is being continued as the temporary phase of the Resettlement Administration activities.

B. Resettlement deals with the following groups:
Farmers living on lands which cannot be cultivated to the advantage of the farm family or the nation. (A preliminary survey by the National Resources Board indicate that about 450,000 farms, including 75 million acres of land, should be devoted to uses other than arable farming in order that both the natural and the human resources of the nation may be conserved.)
Those among our 2½ million tenant farmers who are capable of rehabilitation.

Young married couples with farm experience.

The more capable and industrious of the "rehabilitation" families.

The purpose of Resettlement is not only to help the farmer himself but to help the nation as a whole by stabilizing that segment of the nation's population which has been shifting back and forth between country and city—comprising in times of depression a large percentage of the total of unemployed.

A good many rehabilitation and resettlement families will be placed on individual tracts. However, a number of group settlements have also been planned, a few completed and occupied, and others are under construction. Projects begun under FERA and the Department of Interior have been turned over to Resettlement Administration.

3. How will this work be done?
In rehabilitation moderate sums will be loaned to rehabilitants to be invested in capital goods, such as livestock, farm implements, materials for repairs and construction of houses, barns etc., as well as subsistence goods for a short period until families are able to provide their own subsistence. In Resettlement the program also will include purchase of land or its lease on a long term basis.

4. Who will carry out the Program?
The program will be administered by regional directors for eleven regions into which the nation has been divided assisted by state and district assistants as needed. The Agricultural Extension Service is co-operating, and has undertaken joint responsibility for investigating the needs and qualifications of rehabilitants, for laying out a program of home and farm management for each case, and supervising its execution.

5. Who is eligible for this program?
Families living on land which cannot be made to yield a satisfactory living constitute one type of American farm family that will be served in the resettlement program. During the past year, approximately 11½ million acres of this so-called sub-marginal land has been optioned by the Federal Government, with the purpose of converting this land once again to its highest uses and then assisting

Here's a Poser for the Films!

To crash the movies, say movie executives, you must pose for a screen test—and that goes for Paula Stone, daughter of the famous comedian, Fred Stone, they insist. But the titan-haired youngster, shown above, proved a poser of a different sort. She shunned screen tests, jumped right into an insignificant part, and now she's the feminine lead in a major production, well on her way to fame!

Autumn Is Time to Harvest Bumper Crop of Salad Ideas
By MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer
As long as tomatoes are plentiful, they answer the salad question in my family and when they get scarce, this year, I have a brand-new bunch of ideas. Did you ever realize what could be done with pears, for instance, both fresh and canned? And with nuts? Take this for one example: Two ripe pears, 2 tart red apples, 4 tablespoons minced candied ginger, 4 tablespoons diced celery, 2 tablespoons chopped walnut meats, 4 cups shredded new cabbage, 1 tablespoon blanched and shredded almonds, 2 tablespoons shredded green pepper, y cup seeded Tokyo grapes.
Pure and dice pears. Dice apples without paring. Mix pears, apples, ginger, celery and walnut meats. Mix with French dressing and let stand on ice for thirty minutes. Shred cabbage very fine and let stand in cold water for ten minutes. Drain and mix with almonds and pepper and enough mayonnaise to make moist. Make nests of cabbage on individual salad plates. Fill each nest with fruit mixture and garnish with seeded grapes.
A nice way to serve mayonnaise is to put it in halves of fresh fruit instead of masking individual salads.

Tomorrow's Menu
Breakfast: Honeydew melon balls, cereal, cream, creamed dried beef on toast, milk, coffee.
Luncheon: Baked spinach and rice with mushrooms, graham rolls, Imperial pear salad, milk, tea.
Dinner: Rolled stuffed flank steak, okra and tomato sauce broccoli, autumn salad, plum tapioca pudding, milk, coffee.

With it. Or fill the cavities of pears or peaches or apples with cream cheese beaten with cream until light and fluffy.
A fruit salad so often does double duty, answering for both salad and dessert that it should furnish enough food value to adequately take care of the two courses. Keep this in mind when you serve dessert salads and increase the calories with whipped cream in the dressing or cream cheese the population to move into better orientation with other natural resources. Families will also be assisted in moving from land not included in government purchases.

The second type of farm family which furnishes candidates for resettlement is the farm-tenant class. At least ten per cent of these tenant families are potential candidates for resettlement.

The third type of client, young couples just starting out in life, had they lived three generations ago, would have moved westward. Had they been born one generation earlier, they would probably have moved to the city with the great tide that was flowing in our industrial expansion. Now they find themselves a stranded couple, out of time, with practically no alternative except to start as hired servants or tenants, or, in many cases, with even this door of opportunity closed.

Rehabilitation families constitute the fourth class from which to select resettlement families. These are now farming under the guidance of the Resettlement Administration. Many of them are expected to prove their merit and efficiency and by this test may be accepted in the resettlement program.

6. How are funds handled?
All advances are made direct from the Resettlement Administration to the rehabilitant, who purchases his own goods therewith in accordance with a budget made for him by the County Agricultural Agent. Advances are secured by notes and mortgages, and are repayable within a reasonable time.

7. How are applications selected for this program?
Farmers from the groups mentioned above who desire to be accepted for this program should apply to the Regional Directors of the Resettlement Administration or to his County Representative. These who have failed to qualify for aid from the Farm Credit Administration, or who are threatened with foreclosure and eviction, are considered specially eligible. However, eligibility does not necessarily mean that the applicant will be accepted.

The local representative of the Resettlement Administration, and his county agricultural or home demonstration agent, will help the applicant work out a plan for acquiring and operating his land. A county advisory committee will pass on the plan and determine whether it gives reasonable assurance of success. If accepted, the applicant will be advanced funds with which to carry out the plan and given such guidance as he needs and desires to carry the plan through to completion.

Berry, McNaught on Mat Program

Outstanding Wrestling Program at Legion Arena Thursday Night

What promises to be a standout wrestling program is scheduled for the American Legion arena here Thursday night.

In the opening event Ralph "Wild Red" Berry will meet Scotty McNaught. Both men are top-notch wrestlers with established reputations.

The feature event will be between the "Black Dragon" and the Russian George Ligaskey. The Russian grappler appeared here last week and lost a tough match to Bob Montgomery. The "Black Dragon" was victorious here last Thursday against Barney Conneek.

The show starts at 8 p. m. The arena is located on East Second street.

Imperial Pear Salad
One package lemon or lime-flavored gelatin, 1 cup warm water, 1 cup pear juice, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon ginger or 2 tablespoons minced preserved ginger, six Bartlett pears, 1 package Philadelphia cream cheese, 4 tablespoons whipped cream.
Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add pear juice, lemon juice, salt and ginger. When slightly thickened, fold in three pears, pared and cut in neat dice. Turn into individual molds and let stand in the ice box until chilled and firm. Unmold on a bed of curly cutlets and cream and garnish with pear halves filled with cream cheese blended with cream. Serve mayonnaise in a separate sauce boat for each person to help himself.
Another interesting fruit salad is a stuffed banana and peach combination. Allow one banana and ½ peach for each person to be served. Peel bananas and cut in halves crosswise. Make a boat of each half and roll in lemon juice. Fill each boat with a mixture of cream cheese and salted cashew nuts finely chopped. Put half a peach—either fresh or canned—on a bed of lettuce and fill with a maraschino cherry or peeled and seeded grapes. Put half a banana at each side of the peach and serve with French dressing in a separate sauce boat.

THE NEW DEAL IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, according to a tip which had mildly perturbed certain insiders, has written an article for an anti-administration national magazine in which he excoriates liberal brain-trusters in the New Deal.

Grapevine reports say the Johnson blast is to be published with considerable ballyhoo and that the general will undertake to prove that Roosevelt, through fine felly himself, has been deluded by reformers of the Tagwell and Frankfurter types, who are mentioned by name.

Tu far no one has followed the example of the once powerful Donald Richberg, who wrote to the Saturday Evening Post warning of consequences if it published a Johnson article as derogatory to himself as he had heard it was going to do.

But more than one brain-truster who

Charges R.F.C. Is Threatening Press

R.F.C. Asserted to Hold Balance of Power in Tennessee Newspaper

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—James Hammond, Memphis newspaper publisher, said Wednesday that sale by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of $250,000 of bonds of the Tennessee Publishing Company to the American National bank at Nashville constituted a "threat of fascism in the control of the American press."

Hammond, now in Arkansas, authorized issuance of a statement here by representatives of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, of which he is publisher, in which he said "it is plain that an agency of government has violated our national guarantee of a free press, and the revelation is shocking."

Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced Tuesday that the bonds, held as collateral on a loan to the defunct Canal Bank and Trust Co. of New Orleans, had been sold to Paul Davis, president of the American National bank.

Hammond contended the RFC had bought the bonds on September 20 but "persistently denied it until October 8." He said purchase of the bonds in the Nashville Tennessee and the Evening Tennessee, operated by the Tennessee Publishing Company in receivership, had given the RFC the "balance of power" in the papers.

An RFC official said today the sole interest of the corporation was to get back the money lent on the bonds. The purchase price of the bonds of $250,000, the RFC said, had been fixed in court as the full value to be paid by Davis.

The RFC said that several offers, including one by Hammond, had been submitted but that of Davis had been considered the best. Davis is a brother of Norman H. Davis, American "ambassador at large."

"Mr. Jones, himself, is on record as having said that the RFC would under no circumstances invest in newspaper properties," Hammond's statement said. "At that time, and with commendable judgment, Mr. Jones said that to do so would be to arouse the suspicion that the government was attempting to control the nation's press. Mr. Jones, being a newspaper publisher himself, should know what government control of the press would mean."

I must express surprise that so great a man and as wise a ruler as Mussolini should be willing even to consider to put his gallant nation into such an uncomfortable military and financial position.—Winston Churchill, British statesman.

'Out Our Way' Cartoonist Bags First Lion But He'd Rather Draw Than Be a Huntsman

Jim Williams Gets a Thrill Out of Chase to Avenge His Calves

By JAMES E. KINTNER
NEA Service Special Correspondent

PRESCOTT, Ariz.—Cartoonist Jim Williams has shot his first mountain lion—a seven-footer. And thrill though it was, he stoutly declares that he'd rather draw "Out Our Way." He enjoys the chase, but not the kill.

Out in western Arizona, Williams divides his time between his cattle ranch and his studio, where he draws the cartoons that alternately touch the heartstrings of his thousands of fans and drive them into gales of mirth.

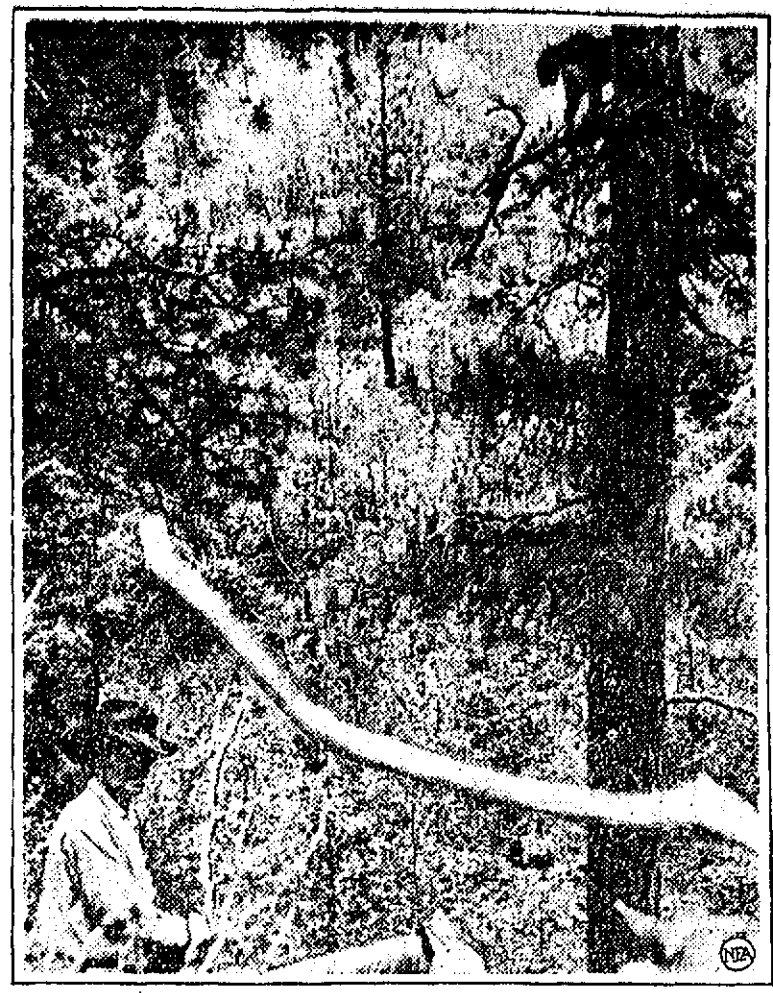

Mountains frown down on the range where Williams' cattle graze and from their lairs on the wooded slopes lions crowd to feast on the rancher's calves. They average a kill every four days.

Just one of the vicissitudes of the cattle business, it was in the cartoonist-rancher's philosophy, until Giles Goswick, lion hunter for the U. S. Biological Survey, drove up the lane to the ranchhouse one evening as the rain pelted down.

Jim and two of his cowboys sat on the porch, where the riders had just arrived to report another calf the prey of marauding cats.

"That fits right in with my errand over here, Jim," grinned the hunter when he heard of the raid "Maybe this'll stir you up for a little revenge and get you away from that drawing board."

"Just before dark, my dogs jumped a lion into a limestone sinkhole up on the point of Juniper mountain. It was too dark to get in there and poke around, so I covered the hole with logs and rocks.

A long, lean, tan menace, the mountain lion poised for her spring from a towering oak, at the left. A moment later, she described an arc through the air, flashed through the brush, and took refuge in the lofty yellow pine tree at the right, below which Cartoonist Jim Williams is shown just before he turned his 30-30 on the quarry to bag his first big cat.

"Now I don't think she'll try to get out before daybreak. It's only an hour's ride from here, so how'd you like to get up there early and have a little fun with the kitty?"

Jim did like it. So at dawn, with Goswick and three cowboys, he was climbing his horse through brush and rock slides on the south side of Juniper mountain, a small pack of hounds trailing along.

Suddenly, baying loudly, the dogs dashed up the mountain on a new course, and Goswick spurred his mount through the brush to head them off. Returning with them a few minutes later, he announced that they had discovered the fresh tracks of another lion.

Reached Lion's Heaven

It was nearly sunrise when the riders topped the peak and a few minutes later rode into an oak thicket to the sinkhole where the first cat had taken refuge.

When the rocks and timber were removed, a light flashed into the cave showed it apparently empty.

"Don't let that worry you," counseled ed the lion hunter. "There are plenty of side pockets in there where she could hide. I'll take the flashlight for a look-see."

No sound came from the hunter for a while. Then the flashlight beam appeared and Giles stuck his head out of the hole.

"Quite a place in there. Our cat's under a rock on the west side. She growled when I went in. Come on down, J. R., if you want to hear her."

Listen to Her Purr

Back into the hole went the pair and then the other three followed, on Giles' invitation. "Come on, fellows, and hear her purr."

One youngster, bolder than the rest, crawled into the narrow hole where the cat lay, then came out precipitously at a spit and a snarl.

Finally it was agreed to smoke out the quarry. Pine cones and needles were dropped into the chamber and lighted. Smoke came oozing out of the cracks in the rocks on the cave entrance. Then there were low growls, the sound of scratching, and again silence.

Giles slowly pointed to the cave, picked up a small rock, and hurled it into the hole. Out shot a long, tan body between Giles and Williams.

In one grand leap the cat had soared from the bottom of the cave, well out into the open, just missing Susie, one of the baying hounds. Susie went growling, rolled over and came up running, the other dogs after her.

Treed in the Canyon

The race was on. Through the loosely grouped horses went the cat, heads hot on her trail. The horses scattered, but stopped, trembling, a short distance away. The hunters stood listening.

Finally Giles spoke. "They've got her treed. Now we'll go down and jump her out and have some real fun."

Down into the canyon they rode. In an oak, with the dogs ringed around at the bottom, the lion crouched, 20 feet up.

"Hurl her come out of there when I throw this stick," advised Giles. "I'll be good training for these young hounds."

"But she may get away," objected Williams.

"Not a chance," replied Giles. "These dogs'll meet her when she hits the ground. I only hope she doesn't cut out of them to pieces when she lands."

He hurled the stick. It struck the lion just above the lion's head. With a screeching sound of unsheathed claws on the oak bark, the lion leaped, describing a perfect arc. Landing perfectly, she darted down the canyon, dogs hot in pursuit, in full tongue.

Down Comes the Cat

Up another tree, a big yellow pine, went the fugitive. Down below waited the yelping hounds and five excited men. The brush was too thick to do any roping, so Giles suggested that they put an end to the quarry and go after the other animal, whose tracks the dogs had found.

Cochrane "Tops" in Baseball Pay

Detroit Manager Sets Mark of $45,000 for Earnings in Past Season

DETROIT, Mich.—Out of the great money World Series in the history of the great national classic, has come a new managerial potentate. His name is Stanley Cochrane, who is the guiding spirit of the Tigers, and now backs in the financial sunlight as the new white haired boy of the major leagues.

When Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club, bought Cochrane from the Athletics for $100,000 in cash, the Tigers were habitual second division occupants, and the fans had become addicted to the idea of staying away from Navin Field in droves. But with the coming of Cochrane, the Midas touch was transferred to Navin and the Tigers. The Tigers topped the 300,000 mark this season. Cochrane pulled the Tigers first into a pennant and then into a world championship. In 1934 Mickey got $25,000 in salary, and a bonus of $10,000. For 1935 he received $30,000 in salary and it is reported that he will draw an additional $15,000. With $45,000 as his return for the year, Cochrane will top all the managers of baseball.

men of the congressional committees associated with Philippine affairs.

The party will continue to Manila on the same liner, making possible a stay of only one day in Tokyo.

Aware of Vice President Garner's wish to see something of Japan while wearing easier habiliments than the silk hat, cutaway and striped trousers of his official status, the foreign office has suggested that if he will stop for a week or more on his return voyage from Manila, the government will arrange for him to enjoy Japanese hospitality in an informal way.

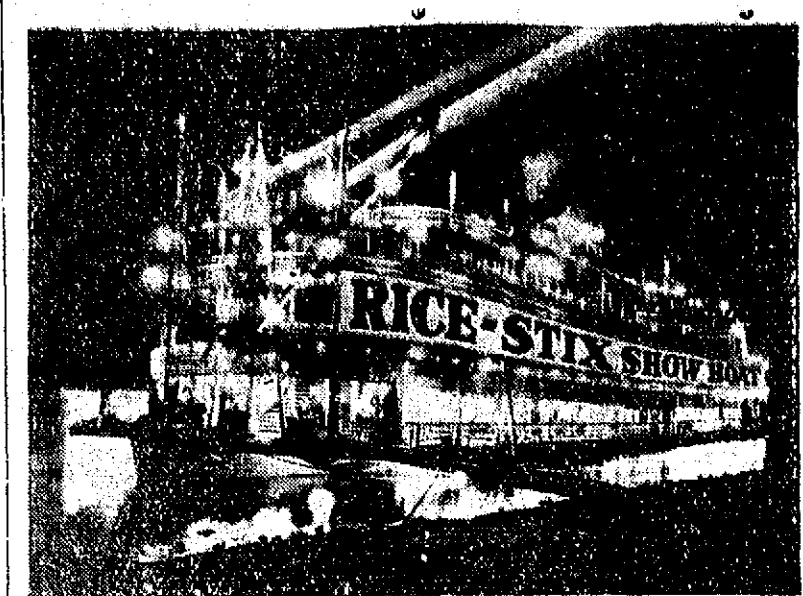

When the Vice President and his party arrive at Kookohama the morning of October 25 the program calls for an immediate motor journey of 18 miles to Tokyo. The imperial audience probably will take place before noon. In the afternoon there will be a reception at the American embassy and in the evening a state dinner at which Admiral Katoke Okada, premier, probably will preside. Mr. Garner will go by train to Kobe on October 26, rejoining the President Grant at that port.

Rice-Stix Show Boat Starts on Voyage Down Mississippi

The Rice-Stix Dry Goods company, of St. Louis, will send a "Show Boat" down the Mississippi River, stopping at the principal river towns, according to an announcement by Ernest W. Stix, president.

The glass-enclosed Steamer Capitol has been chartered for the 1200-mile run and plans are now being completed to transform it into a great floating display of all lines manufactured and distributed by Rice-Stix—believed to be the first of its kind to ply the Mississippi, and certainly a far cry from the little trading scows which used to journey up and down the river in the middle of the last century.

The trip will take about three weeks to complete. Merchants from the cities visited, as well as from surrounding territories, will be invited aboard to select merchandise from the sample lines shown; just as they would in the company's St. Louis headquarters. A sales force of 40 will make the tour, augmented at each stop by the general and special salesmen who regularly cover the district.

Long ago a Mississippi steamboat played a part in a crucial period of the firm's history and, in a sense, the October cruise will be in the nature of a "return trip," although under greatly altered circumstances.

The tentative schedule of stops is as follows: Cairo, October 19; Caruthersville, October 19; Memphis, October 12, 13, 14, 15; Helena, Ark., October 16; Greenville, Miss., October 18, 19; Vicksburg, October 20, 21; Natchez, October 22, 23; Baton Rouge, October 24, 25, and New Orleans, October 26, 27, 28 and 29.

All runs will be made at night so that the daytime hours may be devoted to visits and to display of the company's merchandise.

Complete friends in the East, Solly Vojensky, now on the Coast, has received a vaude offer from Germany. Salary quoted at $125 weekly, and funeral expenses.—Variety.

Balanced Budget

than $11,000,000,000 deeper into debt. Presumably this debt will be still further increased before the depression ends. Presumably also the present tax rates, which Mr. Roosevelt says are sufficient, will yield considerably more in a year of full prosperity than the $4,470,000,000 estimated for the current year. Presumably, likewise, interest rates will go up with prosperity, so that the carrying charge on the debt will be appreciably more than the $745,000,000 of this year.

Making allowance for a favorable turn in all three of these undetermined factors, and assuming that expenditures can be reduced to the depression level of about $3,500,000,000 a year, it still seems certain that Mr. Roosevelt must have in mind spreading the payment of the accumulated debt over a very considerable period of years.

Other Points Raised Although he did not allude directly to Mr. Roosevelt's proposal to pay out under present tax rates, it is obvious that Mr. Hoover's speech was based on a premise that this would not be possible.

Even beyond this, the former President raises points of which much more undoubtedly will be heard during the campaign. He declares that much of the money dispensed by this administration has been spent unwisely, wastefully and in violation of the Democratic campaign promises of 1932.

So it appears that the spending issue, as it now shapes up for 1936, will embrace something more than a charge of unsound financing. Altogether, it promises to rate alongside the many-sided farm dispute as an issue of the very first rank.

As Good as Any
Eilly's mother looked at him accusingly.

"What have you done with all your money, son?" she asked. "Your little bank is empty."

"Well, mother," answered the boy, "yesterday was a rainy day, so I spent it."

Barrymore Splits Riches in Divorce

Dolores Costello Gets $163,000, and $850 Monthly, and Children

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—John Barrymore, who made a fortune making love, was divorced and separated from a good share of his wealth Wednesday by beautiful Dolores Costello.

Miss Costello said Barrymore "made no effort to see me" after his recent playing opposite his protegee, brunette Elaine Barrie, in a cross-country race.

The 35-year-old actor merely dashed in and out of Los Angeles—after eluding Miss Barrie at Kansas City—his wife, herself a former screen star, testified. She said, however, arrangements had been made for him to see his children, Dolores, five, and John, three, whose custody she won.

The 19-year-old Miss Barrie said in New York she was "not particularly interested" in the divorce.

"You just must ask Mr. Barrymore if this makes any difference in our relations," she said. "Any answers must come from him."

A property settlement gave Miss Costello $850 a month and $163,000 in securities. She must pay premiums on her $200,000 life insurance policies for the children's benefit.

Barrymore kept $100,000 in securities, three parcels of real estate including their Beverly Hills mansion, and the yacht Infanta, on which the actor now is reported at sea off Miami, Fla.

Bobcats to Meet

"Beware of the Wildcats. They have a mighty good team down there. Those were the words to Coach Hammons from his former assistant coach, El Dorado has tested its power only once this year against Arkansas teams.

Early in the season the Wildcats ran over Magnolia, 30 to 0. The next two games took El Dorado to Louisiana and the fourth game into Texas.

The Hope High School team will be in top shape for the battle at El Dorado this Friday night, with the exception of Ramsey, an end. Coach Hammons predicted a hard battle, and said that Hope would do its best.

A number of Hope fans plan to witness the battle between the two teams. The Bobcats won over El Dorado last season for the first time in many years.

Italy May Move

Italy in a strange twilight session of the League Assembly which suddenly was adjourned without definite action. League observers, however, expected an overwhelming majority of the 56 assembled members to support sanctions at the session Thursday.

The first speaker will be Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of the Italian delegation, who is expected to denounce the action of the League Council in indicting Italy as an aggressor against Ethiopia and violator of the covenant.

Shortly after the historic meeting of the Assembly which had been called into urgent session was opened, Baron Enrico Piffard of Austria announced: "Austria cannot forget that in a fateful moment of her history Italy contributed to safeguard her integrity. The links that bind the Austrian people to the people of Italy are strong. Austria will not fail in a friendship that is destined to last through time to come."

He referred to the Nazi putsch of July, 1934, when Chancellor Dollfuss was assassinated. Italy's army was moved to the frontier, ready to march into Austria should Nazi Germany attempt to take over the Vienna government.

Hungary took a similar position. Said Laszlo Develics, her delegate: "Hungary bears with grief of measures about to be applied against Italy, which so frequently and effectively has shown its friendship toward Hungary."

A unanimous vote of the Assembly is not required. Any nation which refused to approve the Council's indictment of Italy, however, is not compelled to join in application of sanctions.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief Of Pain

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are one of Nature's chief ways of taking the acids and waste out of the blood. If they don't pass 3 pints a day and so get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing.

If you have trouble with frequent bladder passages with scanty amount which often smart and burn, the 15 miles of kidney tubes may need flushing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes and dizziness.

Don't wait for serious trouble. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS, which have been used successfully for over 40 years by millions of people. They give happy relief and will help flush out the 15 miles of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS.
